

Write about the author's position and tone of the poem "She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways".

Generated: Jan 26, 2026

Write about the author's position and tone of the poem "She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways".

"She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways" (1798) is a short and heartfelt poem by William Wordsworth (1770-1850). It is about Lucy, a simple and unknown girl. The poet writes about her beauty, her lonely life, and her death. The poem is emotional and touches the heart. Wordsworth wrote it with deep feelings for Lucy, showing how much she meant to him.

Author's Position-Subjective: The poem is written in a subjective way. This means the poet shares his personal feelings and emotions. Wordsworth loved Lucy and admired her quiet beauty. He compares her to a violet and a shining star to show how special she was. Her life was simple, and very few people knew her. When Lucy died, it brought a deep sadness to the poet. Her loss made a big difference in his life. This shows that Lucy was very important to him.

Tone- Gentle and Sad: The tone of the poem is both gentle and sad. In the beginning, the poet speaks softly about Lucy's life. He describes her as pure and beautiful, like nature. But in the last stanza, the tone becomes sorrowful. The poet feels pain because Lucy is gone. His words express his grief and love. The tone helps readers feel the poet's sadness and understand how special Lucy was to him.

The poem is simple but full of deep emotions. It shows how even an unknown life can have great meaning to someone.