Write the summary of the poem "The Good Morrow".

"The Good Morrow" (1633) by John Donne (1572-1631) is a beautiful love poem. It describes the deep and spiritual connection between two lovers. The speaker reflects on how their love has transformed their lives. Donne uses vivid imagery and metaphors to show how true love makes two souls united and eternal.

Reflections on the Past: The speaker thinks about life before love. He feels it is childish and meaningless. Past pleasures were shallow and temporary. He says those experiences were like a dream compared to real love.

The Awakening of True Love: The speaker then compares their love to a spiritual awakening. He calls it a "good-morrow" to their souls. Their love has removed fear and made them completely happy. They now see their small room as the entire world because of the strength of their bond.

The Unity of Love: The speaker explains how their love has made them one. He says that he sees his own reflection in his lover's eyes. Their hearts are pure, and their love is balanced and equal. The speaker compares their love to "two better hemispheres," united and without any flaws.

Eternal and Unchanging Love: The poem ends with the idea of eternal love. The speaker says that love dies only when it is unequal. Since their love is perfect and alike, it will never fade. Their souls are so connected that their love will remain strong forever.

The Good Morrow is a celebration of mature and spiritual love. Donne shows that true love is eternal, selfless, and uniting. It makes life meaningful and complete.
