"It was Rahima, wife of the guardian of the saint's grave, who could plead with Majeed to help them in their sorrow; it was she who could intercede on their behalf. She who had become the advocate of the village women before the divine will."

"It is well that a man should know it when he sins. Here, amongst us, we have someone today who has perhaps sinned in ignorance. Yet God declares that ignorance is the greatest sin of all."

"Brethren! Man can never comprehend the mystery of God's acts. Man is made both angels and devils, sinners and innocents."

"The coming of the pir had filled Amena with new hope. Perhaps he could help her. Why perhaps? She knew he could. He had helped many barren women, everybody said so."

"Allah takes away those whom He loves best."

"There are more tupees than heads of cattle, more tupees than sheaves of rice."
